A National Movement: Building a Culture of Health

- Creates a society where every person has an equal opportunity to live the healthiest life they can—whatever their ethnic, geographic, racial, socioeconomic, or physical circumstance.
- Embraces a more integrated, comprehensive approach to health.
- Encompasses both health care and the many other critical factors that impact people's health: early childhood development, education, housing, jobs, and the built environment.
- Requires unprecedented collaboration with everyone playing a role—parents, co-workers, neighbors, civic leaders, policymakers, and industry.

Being in HPRS means learning from and collaborating with a passionate group of emerging scholars representing a diverse range of fields. Collectively we are committed to advancing health equity and building a Culture of Health.

- Valerie Taing, PhD student in Social Work and Sociology, University of Michigan

Seeking Leaders Who...

- Are committed to conducting research that is aligned with the needs of communities, has health equity at its center, and is actionable.
- Are interested in translating their research into evidence-informed health policy.
- Are interested and willing to use interdisciplinary approaches.
- Want to use research and leadership skills to become a change agent for more equitable and actionable research that will inform policy change in the U.S.

Applicants must be:

- Doctoral students in research-focused programs, entering their 2nd year of doctoral study in fall 2021.
- From an underrepresented population and/or historically marginalized background.
- Enrolled full time in U.S. institution.
- Anticipate doctoral program completion no earlier than spring/summer 2024.
- Interested in health policy and interdisciplinary approaches to build a Culture of Health.

Ashley Gripper, PhD student in Environmental Health, Harvard University

How is underrepresented defined?

- Race/ethnicity
- Socioeconomic status
- Ability status
- First generation college graduate
- Underrepresented in field/discipline
- Other historically marginalized background (explain in application)

Who Are Our Scholars?

Preparing Doctoral Scholars as Leaders

The HPRS Program has several key components, including:

- A comprehensive Curriculum that includes courses in health policy, health equity, population health
- Opportunities to network and learn face-to-face, through the Summer Institute and Other In-Person Meetings
- Robust Leadership Training
- A Mentorship Program that creates a team of mentors to support Scholars in the program
- Competitive Dissertation Support, writing workshops, and other resources
- Collaboration with Leaders from various fields

Virtual Experiences

Online Courses

- During the fall and spring semesters
- Combination of recordings and live sessions

Online Portal

- Communicate with Scholars, staff, and mentors

Katherine Gutierrez, PhD student in Economics, New Mexico University

(typically) In-Person Experiences

Fall Institute, October 7-10

- All first-year Scholars attend

RWJF Leadership Institute

- Cross-program meeting for all four leadership programs

Summer Institute

- All Scholars attend for workshops, case experience, graduation

Writing Retreats

- Open to all scholars

Virtual Experiences

The Online Courses are:

- Held 1-2 evenings per month and are typically 75-90 minutes
- Led by experts in the field
- A combination of lectures and small group discussions
- Intended to enrich and build on Scholars' existing coursework in their fields

Making a Culture of Health a shared value can only be done when all stakeholders and citizens have the same access to the same tools and data to shape their individual lives and policy as those in leadership positions. Giving everyday folks accessible tools to activate their leadership is why I am a part of the Health Policy Research Scholars program.

- Jovan Julian, PhD Student in Operations Research, Georgia
Institute of Technology

(Typically) In-Person Experiences

While the one – week Summer Institute is the most in-depth in-person learning experience, there are several meetings during the program.

- Fall Institute, October 7-10 – for First-Year Scholars
- RWJF Leadership Institute – For all Scholars and for Leaders in the three related Leadership programs
- Various Conferences – meetings and special events are often scheduled to coincide with health policy-related conferences (these meetings are typically optional)
- Writing Retreats

Dissertation Support

- Scholars entering their dissertation phase are eligible to apply for a competitive dissertation grant of up to $10,000.
- Scholars who apply must have passed their proposal defense and have a dissertation that is related to building a Culture of Health.
- Grants may be used to support data acquisition and analysis, travel costs, and other research support.

Additional Supports

Opportunities to apply for:

- Conference Travel Award
- Biostatistical Consulting Award
- Research Dissemination Award
